About

Since early 2011, Multrees has supported independent wealth managers and private investment offices that look to enhance client outcomes by combining a transparent open architecture investment offering with a complementary and unconflicted custody and investment administration platform.

By recruiting the right service and operations professionals, combining their skills with modern flexible technology, and by providing a simple transparent fee model, we set out to establish and grow a new type of firm focused on delivering high quality services in support of complex clients and multi-asset, multi-currency investment propositions.

As a result of this fresh approach, and a commitment to maintaining a high quality service through controlled and manageable growth, Multrees has been successful at working with some of the most prestigious firms that are involved in managing the wealth of high net worth, ultra high net worth and institutional clients. A deeper understanding of the challenges and a total commitment to delivering a 'next generation' set of independent custody and consolidated reporting systems has driven this growth.

A straightforward business service

We do things simply and well. We don't trade or advise. Instead we are fully dedicated to providing you with the specific systems you need to develop your business.

Whoever you deal with at Multrees, whether it's your dedicated relationship manager or another member of your shared service model operation, they will subscribe to the same work ethic and dedication to quality that is embedded throughout our business.

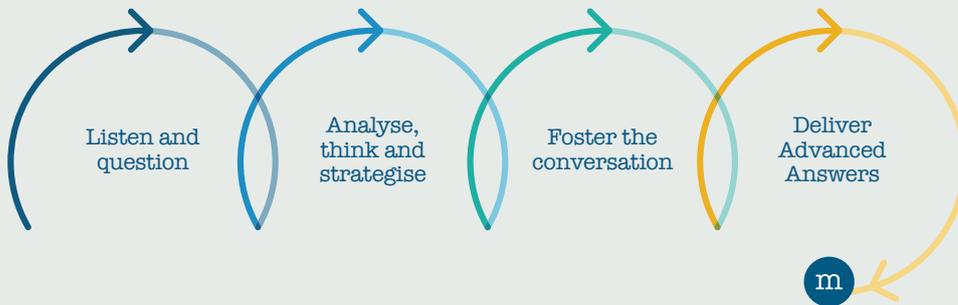

Our team is an extension of your business, working with you to deliver responsive and efficient client-focused services

Fresh technology overcomes legacy systems

With the pressure on to invest in improving IT and the growing forest of regulatory requirements, wealth management firms are increasingly faced with the burden of dealing with legacy systems.

Outsourcing to Multrees relieves you of that burden giving you the resources to provide a powerful combination of leading edge technology and know how, future-proofing your offering.

A unique, constructive approach
